2 Killed, 4 Hurt In Auto Crash

Mokena Man Injured In Fall From Wagon

N F Heiman, well known Mokena plumber, was quite badly hurt Tuesday morning while driving a load of oat bundles to the Elmer Benson farm at the edge of the village to be threshed, when the bundles slipped just as he was driving into the farm yard. In the resultant fall Mr. Heiman suffered injuries to his side and back. He has been ill. He was moved to the St. Joseph hospital in Joliet Thursday morning where x-rays will be taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

1 KILLED 3 INJURED WHEN AUTO RUNS INTO LOCOMOTIVE

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Haag of Mokena, together with the former's father and sister, Mr. Walter Haag and daughter Dolores Haag of Cullom, Ill. attended a birthday party in Chicago last Saturday evening of a relative. Mr. Walter Haag and daughter and also an eight year old boy, a relative from Chicago returned to Cullom after the party. It was past midnight when they came to the railroad crossing in Kankakee, Ill.

This seems to be a dangerous crossing as there are many tracks and much switching is being done, and it is hard to see. There were many box cars standing near the crossing and Mr. Haag, who was driving a Mercury car, collided with an engine which was switching at the crossing. His car was completely wrecked and he was injured in his chest. Dolores Haag received lacerations on the face and the young boy had three teeth knocked out. A brakeman, who was a friend of Mr. Vernon Haag, was killed. The Haags were all removed to St. Mary's hospital in Kankakee and were released Tuesday. Mr. Haag is 50 years old.

TRY YOUR LUCK ON THE BERLANGER WELL

Albert Belanger residing in the Bartlett subdivision west of Mokena near the Peter Mancke farm reports having had quite an experience in trying to get water on his place. Recently he had a well drilled and claims that the well driller evidently forgot to issue instructions on how to extract water from the well. Mr. Belanger says that perhaps someone can show him how to make this well produce water and states that he will give a $5 cash prize to any man, woman or child who can do so. He further states that if anyone willing to undertake this job should be over come in trying to get water out of the well, he will also provide a nurse and medical aid for them. Now who is game to try to get water out of Mr. Belanger's well?

WILL HAVE PEACHES

I will have peaches, when the good canning Michigan peaches are ripe. Yes, I realize you are getting itchy to can some. There are plenty of peaches, they are going to be cheaper than last year. I can't promise any prices. However, I can say I'll have the best at the cheapest price possible. If our peaches do no please you tell us: if you like them, tell your neighbors.

I was in Michigan last Sunday, the prospect now, without a hail or wind storm is the best in 10 years. The government has the ceiling set on peaches all grades, at $3.66; that is from the grower to the seller. I honestly believe they will sell here around ceiling there.

The means of transportation is very serious. The commission men are just going to buy what they can haul. Hiring other trucks is impossible.

Therefore, small individual buyers like myself are going to be able to buy cheaper. Good apples are not plentiful, and are not going to be; the apples, both early and late, are a short crop. I had a load last Sunday at $2.75 per bu. And I don't believe they will be any cheaper. And maybe the next load will be higher. The good Michigan canning peaches, Halehead, Alberta, South Haven and the J. H. Hale will start coming on the market around the 15th to 20th of August. I'm going to try to have a load here the week of the 20th. I will have them at least twice a week depending on how they suit the public.

I want to buy the tree ripe peaches I'll buy the best I can find. Also, will fill order for Bartlett pears and blue prune plums.

Thank each and every one for their business and hoping I can continue to please you.

Sincerely,
Ray Callahan, Tinley Park.

WILL HOLD BAKE SALE

Fire of unknown origin, broke out Thursday morning at 8:30 am. in the barn on the Wm. Folkers farm which is located 1 mile west of the intersection of Routes 30 and 45 on Route 30.

There was no machinery or hay in the barn it being practically empty except for the above mentioned animals. The barn was completely destroyed.

The Frankfort fire department responded to the call and while they could do nothing to save the barn, saved the other farm buildings and home.

FRANKFORT PATIENTS OF MARINE RECEIVE VERY INTERESTING LETTER

Pfc. Havey G Hagemeyer, a marine, son of Mrs. Henry Krohn, was wounded in action in the landing on Saipan. The following letter, the first in nearly four months, was received by his mother recently:

Dear Mother: I suppose you have been worrying because you haven't heard from me. I guess this letter will take care of that. I am on Saipan Island. I don't know whether you people back there have heard anything about Saipan since the invasion of Europe took place a few days before we hit here. However things were pretty hot for awhile here. I had a bad infection in my index finger of my left hand, and nearly lost it. You can imagine me with a little infection among all these wounded and dying. I should complain! They had to cut it open, the whole length of the finger to the bone, it was most painful but was more in the way than anything else. Then I had to get Dengue fever. That is quite miserable to have. You get very sick to your stomach and have chills, fever; headache and in fact you ache all over your body and are weak. I'm still very weak but I think I'll go back into action very soon.

You said something about ratings here, well if I get another I'll be fortunate. In reference to invasion here we call it amphibious operation. This is the third one since I've been overseas. I have quite a collection of Jap souvenirs but I don't know how many. I will get home. One is a Jap rifle, don't think I will be able to get this home but will try. I suppose you know the fighting is over here at Saipan. So do not worry. I am short of paper so will close, love to all. Harvey

Pfc. Hagemeyer served three months with the merchant marine previous to his enlistment in the Marines in May 1943. At that time an act which prompted his enlistment attack on his ship nearly cost his life, his mother said. He is the first serviceman listed on the Frankfort honor roll to be wounded in action.

Washington, D. C. ELECTORAL COLLEGE SQUABBLE

Those who have carefully dug into the history of the electoral college admit privately that Jim Farley's legal counsellors, who hatched the idea of electors disregarding the popular vote, did some smart thinking, not from the viewpoint of a fair election but in regard to historic precedent.

Most famous case in which the electors flouted the majority of voters was in the election of 1876 between Hayes and Tilden. But there have been other interesting and more recent cases, though they didn't upset a national election or attract much attention. For instance:

In the Teddy Roosevelt-Alton B. Parker election of 1904, Maryland cast seven electoral votes for Parker and only one for Roosevelt, though Roosevelt had the majority of the popular vote by the very slight margin of 109,497 to 109,446. . . . In the Taft-Bryan contest of 1908, Maryland electors again ignored the will of the people by voting 6 to 2 for Bryan, though Taft got a slight edge of the popular vote by 116,513 to 115,908. . . . California electors split their vote in the 1912 Wilson-Taft-Roosevelt fight by a 2 to 11 vote in the electoral college for no particular reason. Wilson ran second in the popular vote, with Roosevelt first, but two electors disregarded this and voted for Wilson anyway.

History is dotted with isolated cases where a few electors bolted the wishes of the people of their state and voted as they pleased. This, it must be admitted, was what the Constitution specified, though general custom has ruled otherwise.

In the McKinley-Bryan contest of 1896, one California elector plumped for Bryan, though the people of the state voted for McKinley. One Kentuckian did the same thing in the same election. . . . Michigan in 1892 saw only 9 of its electors vote for Benjamin Harrison and 5 for Grover Cleveland, though Harrison got the popular vote. . . . Ohio cast one electoral vote for Cleveland in the same election, though Harrison carried the state by a slender margin.

All of this background indicates why FDR's politicos, though not admitting it publicly, are scrutinizing credentials carefully and are not at all happy about the electoral college threat in the South.

RED 'TIRE-TAPE'

Strange as it seems, American motorists soon will have a chance to buy German and Japanese tires. Behind this is a story of inexcusable government red tape and procrastination.

Inside fact is that, immediately after Pearl Harbor, U. S. officials began buying up all sorts of tires in South America, accumulating tires imported to Latin America from every part of the world, some of them five to twenty years old. Several hundred old Japanese and German tires were found among Brazilian stocks.

When these tires were originally imported into the United States, they were allocated largely for military use, some for lend-lease, some for government agencies.

Last November, however, synthetic tire manufacture was increasing and it was decided to sell a large number of these imported tires to civilians. Here came the first red-tape hitch. The tires had been purchased by the Rubber Development corporation, an FEA agency. But Rubber Development did not want to sell the tires to Defense Supplies corporation, a Jesse Jones agency, except at the price which it had originally paid in Brazil. This price, in order to get the tires away from Brazilians, had been high.

But Jesse Jones and his Defense Supplies corporation, being shrewd bargainers, didn't want to buy at that high price.

More Red Tape.

Finally, Rubber Director Col. Bradley Dewey stepped in to help cut the red tape. Rubber Development's high price was met. But then, more delays developed.

Finally, on February 28, 1944, Colonel Dewey signed a strongly worded directive demanding once again that the tires be turned over to civilian use. However, it was not until June, four months later, that the transfer to Defense Supplies corporation was finally completed.

Thus, seven whole months were wasted while the tires gathered dust.

POLITICAL CHAFF

It wasn't what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina, but rather what several governors of North Carolina said to each other en route to Chicago. On the North Carolina Special were favorite son Governor Broughton, ex-Gov. O. Max Gardner, and ex-Gov. John Ehringhaus. . . . All came to the convention together, in addition to North Carolina's Lieut. Gov. R. L. Harris, ex-Speaker Will Smith, and ex-Congressman Frank Hancock.

Diner De Luxe at Burma Front

American field service ambulance drivers en route to the Burma front lunch on a flat car and find that the food is as good as in a de luxe diner. These volunteers are serving with British and Indian forces. They travel by boat, road and rail for long distances, always with their assigned ambulances.

Efficient Job of Demolition

General Talks With His Men

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander, is shown in center of circle as he addressed men of the First division in Normandy. The general made a special trip to France to decorate 24 men for valor in the field. Despite his many duties he usually finds time to personally inspect all troops under his command and to listen to their problems. His popularity at the front has proven as great as on the homefront. Hundreds of American homes have received letters from General Eisenhower telling of good work done by their GI Joes.

Yanks Shell Retreating Nazis

As one American soldier pulls the lanyard of a howitzer, two others hold ears and turn away from the roar as they shell retreating German troops near Carentan. American columns are still reported as advancing everywhere along the western half of the Normandy front despite powerful opposition.

Stimson in England

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson is shown examining the remains of a flying bomb shortly after it exploded in England. The war secretary has been conferring with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in England and inspecting American troops on invasion fronts.

'Fello Needs a Pal'

Constant companion of this sad-eyed bewildered Japanese youngster was "Shipper," the ship's mascot of a coast guard-manned assault transport, where the "Little Tojo" found haven and medical treatment from the strife that surged over his Sapan home.

Invasion of England

From the gaping bow doors of an LST, German prisoners of war stream ashore at a British port. When they used to sing "We Sail Against England," they never dreamed that the landing on the shores was going to be like this—as prisoners of war.

POWER THROUGH SELF-DISCIPLINE (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 1:7-10; Jeremiah 35:5-10; I Corinthians 9:24-27; I Thessalonians 5:22.

GOLDEN TEXT—And every man that strive for the mastery is temperate in all things.—I Corinthians 9:25.

Discipline—that word doesn't sound exactly attractive, does it? It makes us think of punishment for wrongdoing, when in reality it is a very helpful word which means teaching. Disciples learn, and thus are disciplined, so that life becomes safer, simpler, and more efficient.

When the Morro Castle caught fire, there was time for everyone to escape, but 134 out of the 500 on board perished because they fought each other. When the President Coolidge sank in the South Seas 4,500 soldiers escaped alive. What made the difference? Discipline, that's all, but it was enough.

There are many kinds of discipline, and all have their important place in preparing men to live well ordered and useful lives. The disciplined life has power to meet trials and temptations. We find in our lesson three kinds of discipline:

I. Home Discipline (Prov. 1:7-10).

The training received by the child early in life from its parents is of the utmost importance in forming character. Children should learn the true standards of life, and be held to obedience to them if they are later to walk in the right way.

It is here that they most effectively learn the danger of the use of intoxicants and the importance of keeping their bodies clean and strong for the service of God and country.

Some parents (possibly misled by attractive, but false theories of education) think that the correction or punishment of a child is not to be permitted. They assume that they are being kind to a child by not limiting his development, or trying to direct it. These are the people who "curse their children with kindness," which is in fact the greatest of unkindness.

Only a fool (v. 7) will despise the instruction of his parents, and only a fool of a parent will fail to give that training which is like "an ornament of grace" (v. 9) in the life of the young man or woman.

But the discipline of the home needs the support of

II. Social Discipline (Jer. 35:5-10).

The social order, which concerns our relation to our fellow men, disciplines each of us. It makes many and what sometimes seem burdensome demands of us in order that we, as well as those around us, may have the privilege of living ordered and useful lives.

Wise is the man or woman who draws from his fellowship with others that helpful training which gives him stability and grace.

The Rechabites had made a vow that they would not drink intoxicants, and as a tribe they stood by that vow even when tested by Jeremiah. (Note that we say tested, not tempted. He knew they would stand.)

Fine family traditions have great value in guiding and controlling young people. We should, like the good man Jonadab (v. 6), establish a tradition of abstinence from intoxicants which will make all of our descendants say, "No one in our family ever drinks."

The training of home and of society has one great goal and that is

III. Self-Discipline (I Cor. 9:24-27; I Thess. 5:22).

In the life of every one of us there should be that determined purpose that life shall not be lived in careless disorder, or be permitted to run out at loose ends.

We are all running a race (v. 24), and it is for us so to run that we may achieve success. We cannot run with uncertainty (v. 26), we must know where we are going.

We are fighting a fight, and at times it is a desperate, life-and-death struggle. We must not beat the air (v. 26), but strike home the telling blows which will bring victory over our enemies, the world, the flesh, and the devil.

To do this calls for training and self-discipline. It means bringing the body and its demands into subjection. The man who runs in a race does not destroy his chances for victory by using intoxicants, or other detrimental things. Surely we who run the race for Christ must be even more determined that self shall be disciplined for God's glory.

The standard for the conduct of the Christian is higher than is commonly supposed, for he withdraws himself from "every form of evil."

The disciplined believer knows that sin is sin—that what looks comparatively innocent often wears a false face covering real wickedness, or it is the first step on a downward path. To start on that way is to invite disaster. A striking example of this is the social drink—the fashionable cocktail—the friendly glass. Abstain is the word—"abstain from every form of evil."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

The blunt end of a pencil may be used to turn a fabric belt right side out. And orangewood stick is excellent for working the corners out sharply.

A coat of white shellac applied to the cover of your cook book keeps it looking like new.

Hemming a new frock will be easier if you cut a piece of cardboard to the exact width you want the hem and use it as a marker. Start the hem, insert the card and slip it along as you work.

When making aprons, sew on two pockets. Then, if you need a patch you can use one of the pockets.

Take a large paper bag with you when cleaning or tidying up the living room. Into it empty contents of ash trays and wastebaskets.

about me, I'm alright. Would like to tell you about everything but I can't. All the people in the places we came thru seemed very glad to see us. Some of the children threw flowers at us as we went by. The country here seems to be very nice. We had a little shower of rain today but it didn't last long. The sun is out nice and bright again. It doesn't get real hot here like it does in the States.

How are you and Harold feeling? Fine I hope. Will try to write to Harold a little later. What kind of wall paper did you get for the house? I'll bet your glad its all done. Today is my birthday. We've been doing our own cooking and we get along pretty well.

Our mail hasn't caught up with us yet. Hope we get some tomorrow. I suppose I'll have a lot of letters to answer when we get it. Will have to close. Write soon and don't worry about me. Love, Walter.

YOUR PORTABLE MOTOR IS A FARM FRONT FIGHTER—
keep it working!

For the big jobs. James Burt (center) and Bernard Rivard (right) of Kankakee, built this husky portable motor rig from plans furnished by the Farm Representative who inspects it here.

The portable farm chore motor has had its shoulder to the wheel a lot these days, but its possibilities as a time and labor-saver are practically limitless where farm chores must be done more quickly, easily, and without watching.

Many Northern Illinois farmers are getting extra help from their tireless motors by making them portable so they can be harnessed in a jiffy to grinders, mixers, elevators, and hoists. They then become mechanical hired hands that help the time-pressed farmer who often wishes he had ten pairs of hands. (Plans for making large or small motors portable may be obtained from one of our Farm Representatives upon request by card or phone.)

Use your motor when and wherever you can, but treat it as the dependable fellow-worker it is by keeping it in good repair. In these days of "mend and repair"—"make it do, and don't let it wear out"—motors are hard to replace. Check yours today—keep it in the fight... keep it working to help speed the hour of Victory!

Meet the Little Motor that goes places and gets things done on the Harold S. Anderson farm, Geneva. In the machine shop and around the farm it makes short work of drilling, grinding, corn shelling—even runs a cement mixer.

Here's an idea...

"...and I often think of Elm Street"

"... I'm a long way from home out here, and when I'm alone at night, Dad, I often think of Elm Street with its big trees, its neat houses, the bells on a quiet Sunday morning—and all of us coming in town for church. It's the peace and freedom and decency of it all that gets under my skin—and it makes me a bit homesick now and then.

"There's nothing like Elm Street over here—and never will be till these folks change their system.

"The trouble lies with the men who rule—and with the people who let them get away with it.

"Over here the wrong men have been running things too long. They have been crazy with power. They gradually took over more and more, and when the people finally woke up—it was too late. These folks can't throw out their officials the way we can. They have to have a war to get rid of their so-called 'new order.'

"Thank God we can still put the men we want into office—and throw them out again—with ballots instead of bullets.

"This mess is a fine example of what dictatorship and regimentation can do when they really get going. And talk about bureaucrats—you ought to see what the ones over here are doing to farmers. You can't do anything on your own. You just take orders—and like it.

"We ordinary folks at home always had a feeling of independence and self respect. You and Mom were always looking ahead to better things—for yourselves and for us kids. That sort of thing is missing here, Dad—and I think it's the result of years of being pushed around. These folks have been told what to do and when and how to do it for so long that they don't know anything else. They've forgotten how to think for themselves.

"Don't let this system get a toe hold at home, Dad. It's bad stuff. And the trouble is, it sneaks up on you. You don't realize that it's got you till it's almost too late.

"I think most American farmers are just like us—plain, practical, hard working, thrifty people—blessed with a lot of good common sense. Most of us aren't very strong for fancy political theories. We know by experience that the American way of getting things done, even with its short-comings, has brought more real happiness, prosperity, progress, education, health and general good to more people than any other system in the world.

"And that's something to think about . . ."

Millions of American boys from farms and villages are doing a lot of thinking. They are writing home anxiously these days. Many of them are worried—wondering what is happening to America while they are away. They realize now, more than ever, what real freedom means—and we at home must guard it for them as well as for ourselves.

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS!

IT IS good news to all of us that a limited number of new telephone sets will be made for home use starting some time this year. Unfortunately, this will NOT mean any immediate or general relief for those people on our waiting list for service.

War needs still have first claim on new telephone equipment. To care for the growing waiting list of unfilled orders will require more new telephones and other facilities than can possibly be produced in the near future.

We're sorry some new customers must wait and we are doing many things to give them service at the earliest possible moment. We appreciate their patience and understanding.

IN MEMORIAM

WARNING LIZZIE—In memory of my dear mother, who passed away August 10, 1930.

It is sad that one we cherish should be taken from our home.

But the joys that do not perish live in memory alone.

All the happy, golden hours shall be cherished in remembrance

Fragrant sweets from memory's flowers.

Dear Ladies:

Of all the things that make up happiness I think the best of them is to be remembered. So for your gift the boys and myself say many thanks. I do not know who is responsible for sending me the News-Bulletin but my copy each week is appreciated. So kindest regards to all of you.

Dear Skip:

How's everybody and what are you doing on your vacation? Doing much swimming?

Heard from Jimmie and I guess he has a good deal now, plenty of liberty and having our old top Sargeant for a top now. He's a pretty good egg and Bert and Jim ought to get along fine with him.

I've been using V-mail ever since my pack was burned up. So I called Ray up on the switchboard and asked him if he had any extra stationery and just by chance he had an extra box.

They're letting us tell our folks that were in a rest camp in Hawaii, you knew I was there a couple weeks after I landed there. Thought I let you know just for fun. I'm standing my switchboard watch now we stand three hours and 12 off. The only one I don't like are the night watches. It's dark as pitch and jungle all around and not a light anywhere, man, is it ever spooky. You hear a land crab or a frog go rutting through the dead leaves and grab your carbine. Boy would this ever be a poor place for you as jumpy as you are.

Had a letter from Bob Smith the other day and it really was swell to hear from him again. He's in the medical corp and is stationed at some hospital in Hines, Illinois, from the way he talks he likes the army but then who wouldn't with duties like he has.

We're getting good chow now, it's heated and we have either biscuits or bread once a day. We had some doughnuts one day and apple pie on another day, all mom is going to do when I get back is bake pies for me. Some of the other guys have eaten those graham cracker pie and man aren't they just swell, oh if I only had now. I've changed quite a bit sis, when we have the chance we buy whole quarts of ice cream and eat it all then go back for more. These round pies that mom makes will just about fill me up. So you see the marine corps has made a chaw hound out of your big brother. How is Hank and family? Is he still working for Johnson-Johnson? Boy we really use a lot of that kind of bandages over here. I know, because I helped bandage some of them. I got sick at my first smell of blood, but it doesn't bother me anymore. It's just the looks on those guys' faces that gets a guy. Well gee whiz, how did I get off on that subject?

Stand by for a lot of fun when I get home, cause you got to teach me to dance. Well sis, got to off watch now, so bye for now. Write soon. Love to all, Bud. (Cpl. Manning Hutson.)

Church School 10:00 a. m. Mrs. Francis Nelson, Superintendent. Morning Worship 11:00 a. m. Sunday Evening Club: 8:00 pm. Sermon: Remember the Sabbath.

Modern men appeal to two seemingly contradictory precepts when they discuss working on Sunday. One side repeats the Old Testament injunction, "Remember the Sabbath, to keep it holy"; the other side quotes Jesus, "The sabbath was made for man, not man for the sabbath." In these days of big crops and heavy production, the problem of the right use of Sunday, is important. What is the answer?

Sunday Evening club 8:00 pm. Mr. Homer Sabin will lead a discussion on the subject: Winning the Peace: The Dream of a New World Order. Come and share your ideas.

The Ladies of the Marley Missionary society will hold their monthly meeting in the church parlors Thursday afternoon, August 10 one week earlier than the regular date. The committee in charge are Miss Caroline Tiley, Mrs. Dora Tiley, Miss Isabelle Tiley and Mrs. Eliz. Haley. Supper will be served at 4:30 pm.

THE United States, for many years, has led the world in competitive sport. And yet the United States has dropped far behind in the matter of physical fitness when compared to many other nations.

This country has given entirely too much attention to improving the winning ability of its stars. Little regard has been given the great mass that actually need training and conditioning. But these millions are neglected because they have little to contribute in the way of football, baseball or other sports which absorb most of the public's attention through newspaper headlines and through the paying turnstiles. Entirely too much training and developing attention has been given to those who need this least.

Grantland Rice

We see where Lieut. Col. Donald G. Storck of the army air corps, one of West Point's finest athletes and a man of broad understanding, is now in charge of the new physical training branch for the army air forces.

Up-to-date the navy has turned in a much better job along these lines than the army has even approached. Under the direction of such men as Commanders Hamilton, Wickhorst and Gene Tunney, to mention only a few, navy has done the best it could to help build up this country's youth that, along average lines, was in sad need of such training help. For after all, the physical development of the many is far more important than the championship form of the few who are already fit and ready.

Colonel Storck has outlined a plan which applies both to the physical and competitive side, building up the fiber of legs, arms and bodies, plus contact games that teach one to think quickly in action. It is a fine plan and is sure to accomplish a world of good.

How About Younger Set?

In the meanwhile, who is to look after the training and development of the younger boys, those between the ages of 12 and 16? This group is well below the draft age so their condition is not a military problem. And yet this is the time such help is needed more than ever.

Many of these boys get some sort of a chance to build up their bodies and their competitive mental attitudes at various prep schools and boys' clubs, but this list is in a heavy minority. There are millions who get no such opportunities. As a result the majority of our youngsters are well below the averages of many other countries.

Returning officers and enlisted men from Australia tell you the average Australian or New Zealand kid gets much better service of this sort than we give over here. We need far more trainers, coaches and instructors in every section of the country.

When 100,000 boys around 18 years old are drafted and some 25,000 are found to be physically unfit for service, you get a general idea of our present poor conditioning program for those who need the right training more than any one else.

I should say that less than 50,000 boys out of 100,000 are up to the physical standards they should know at 18. Boys of 10 should do a lot more walking, running, jumping and swimming than they do—not in competition, but in the way of exercises needed to give them the right foundation for future living.

Two Leading Examples

Looking over the map, it is my guess that the high school students of Texas and Oklahoma are given the best chance for development on both the physical and competitive side. No wonder so many football, baseball and track stars come out of Texas and the southwest in general.

Texas and a big portion of the southwest will shortly be getting much larger dividends than any other section of the country from a saner use of their youth power. Conditions in the larger cities of the country are deplorable where so many millions of kids between 10 and 18 years old are involved. These youngsters rarely have any chance at all to find the physical fiber so badly needed later on.

And the depressing point is that so few of the older people seem to care.

Sports on the Home Front

Many promoters tell us about the way England is handling sport. I wonder if they know that while England and Scotland are carrying on, almost the entire proceeds are given to the Red Cross or some war fund?

There is no sporting clean-up in Great Britain. There are no promoters collecting important money, from the testimony that I get. There are no stars raking in rich purses, whatever the game.

ALTHOUGH night baseball has been the most important factor in keeping the game alive during wartime, there are still a few unbelievers in the major league circuits.

Ed Barrow, president of the New York Yankees, has little enthusiasm for the vesper version. According to columnist Dan Parker, he cooled off on the proposition almost a half century ago when his Paterson, N. J., club of the Atlantic league, starring one Honus Wagner, took part in the first professional ball game under arc lights at Wilmington, Del.

It was back in 1896, about the first of July. And, according to Parker, "In the flickering blue light of carbon-stick arc lamps, the first night game in organized baseball ran into trouble soon after it got under way when the rival pitcher, steamed up by Barrow to play a practical joke on Wagner, substituted a Fourth of July torpedo for the ball the first time bow-legged Honus came up to bat.

"Honus took a tooth for his cut and met the paper-covered bag of gunpowder flush on the detonator, causing such an explosion that the game broke up in a riot. Ed thought night baseball was a snare and a delusion then and he still sticks to his belief, although he wavered a bit this spring when the

Honus Wagner

Yanks slumped both in attendance and in the league standing. He said:

Change of Heart

"Under certain conditions, I wouldn't be too opposed to night baseball. But what good would it do me to change my mind this year when we couldn't install equipment for night games even if we wanted to?"

It wasn't so long ago that Clark Griffith was a determined opponent of the night game. But the situation has changed. Mr. Griffith is one of the most radical advocates of the electrically-lighted sport.

There's a good reason for Griffith's change of heart. Washington is glutted with federal employees who couldn't take time off for an afternoon game. They did want baseball, but had to have it in the cool of the evening. Logic—and business acumen—dictated the answer to Griffith. Washington now is the night baseball center of the major leagues. Griffith has permission to play as many night games as he desires, except on Sundays or holidays.

Many changes have come to pass during the past 12 years. Of the 15 major league clubs, all but 5 have facilities for night baseball. Those 5 fields remaining in the dark are Fenway park and Braves field in Boston, Wrigley field in Chicago, Briggs stadium in Detroit and the Yankee stadium in New York. These parks couldn't install the powerful batteries of lights on their steel towers now if they wanted to, because, even though the ban on such construction was lifted not long ago, the material required isn't likely to be available until after the war.

The Evidence

Not that General Electric will go into rhapsodies, but we're in favor of night ball. Joe Doakes, the boy who helps turn out materials for war, deserves a break. He probably likes baseball. But he can't knock off the job Thursday afternoon to see the Yanks and White Sox battle. Night baseball provides the answer. Joe can see the game. He is happy. And Joe, multiplied a few hundred thousand times, makes the baseball club treasurer happy.

The case of the Southern association is proof of the value of the night game. This fine organization practically owes its existence to Mr. Edison's incandescent lamp. All games except those on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays are played at night in Billy Evans' circuit.

Evans wasn't wild about night baseball when he resigned from the Boston Red Sox and took over the presidency of the association. It didn't take him long to find out that the lights made the difference between black and red in the ledger. Association cities which formerly attracted 300 on-week days now draw 3,000 in the hush of the evening.

The preponderance of evidence favors night ball. The situation is likely to continue.

SPORTS SHORTS

Gov. Dwight Griswold of Nebraska played football at Nebraska Wesleyan more than 30 years ago. He starred on the eleven.

The Saratoga, N. Y., Spa golf course has no grade steeper than 5 per cent because of cardiac patients at the resort.

Emil Verban, the Cardinals' new infielder, has a twin sister, Frances, who is a softball star.

The St. Louis Cardinals won their first National league pennant in 1926. Since then they have won six more.

Adequate Water for Stock Is Essential

Improvement Seen As Production Aid

Full utilization of grazing areas, with an attendant production of more and better meat and dairy products requires adequate water for livestock on range and pasture. No matter how palatable and plentiful the forage, if sufficient water at regular intervals is not available, livestock will not reach a good marketable condition.

Development of enough wells and springs and ponds to supply the necessary water is not the only requirement, WFA points out. Proper distribution of the water in relation to available forage is essential to efficient grazing as full utilization cannot be realized if an adequate supply is not accessible to livestock on any part of the pasture or range acreage.

Stock-water developments are important on farm pastures in humid areas as well as on the ranges in semi-arid and arid states, according to government authorities. While the greatest need is in the latter areas, inadequate facilities prevent the fullest use of good pasture on many farms because the owner is not aware that a lack is possible in the more humid section where he is raising stock. Also, he may not realize how influential stock-water supplies can be in improving the quality and quantity of range and pasture feed.

In many states, farmers may receive assistance in carrying out stock-water developments under the conservation program administered by the agricultural adjustment agency.

Conservation of soil and water are aided indirectly by development of necessary pasture and range watering facilities. With proper development and distribution of water supplies, grazing can be restricted on overgrazed, eroded or depleted rangeland and the stock rotated over other areas in keeping with their grazing capacity. Adequate water supplies on farm pastures, while encouraging more uniform grazing, will also aid pasture improvement practices, and decrease damage from erosion.

Water facilities are, roughly, of two kinds—natural and constructed. Springs, streams and lakes are in the first group. The second requires drilling, excavation or other construction work to make water available, and includes wells, artificial reservoirs and ponds, ditches, and troughs and storage tanks attached to springs and reservoirs.

Fertilizer Increase

Half Million Tons

American farmers this year will use well over 11,000,000 tons of commercial fertilizer—a new all-time high. That's half a million tons more than were used in 1943 and 3,000,000 tons more than in 1940.

Adjustments in analysis of complete fertilizers to be sold in different states have been made to insure the best possible use of the available materials supplying nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash. The nitrogen content of many of the available grades has been increased somewhat, indicated supplies of this important plant food being about 35 per cent greater than last year.

While some fertilizer ingredients are available in somewhat larger amounts this year than last, all of them, including such important nitrogen-carrying materials as ammonium sulfate, sodium nitrate, ammonium nitrate, and fertilizer compounds, are still on allocation by the War Production board.

Large Worm Loss

Experts say the average wormy pig, if it lives, requires one-fifth more feed to reach the same weight as an uninfested one. Since about half of the pigs in the United States are said to be infested, elimination of internal parasites would save great quantities of feed. It would save many hogs, veterinarians estimating that worms kill one pig in ten. By wide experiments and use, phenothiazine has proved to be the only drug that will control nodular worms. It also controls roundworms or Ascarids as effectively as other commonly used anthelmintics. Phenothiazine is usually given with dry feed mixtures to hogs confined in a pen, although individual doses of pellets, tabs or as a drench with a syringe are also used. The drug should be given according to printed directions or under the supervision of a veterinarian.

The Private Papers Of a Cub Reporter

A visiting movie star was asked which man she would enjoy meeting most . . . To the amazement of the interviewers, she said: "Albert Einstein" . . . The noted scientist was lecturing in Manhattan and he agreed to see her . . . With the scribes scribbling and the flashlight bulbs bulbing, the star in an awed voice said, "It's a thrill to think that I am talking to the one man who knows more about the stars than any other living person."

"Not quite," replied Einstein. "No one can predict what a star will do—to get her name in the papers."

They tell the one about the colonel, speaking at a dinner in his honor before embarking for Africa . . . "I thank you," he concluded, "for your kind wishes regarding my welfare, and I want you to know that when I am far away, surrounded by ugly, grinning savages, I shall always think of you."

Jackie Coogan, recently back from paratrooping in Burma and India, said that his Burma Glider group landed near a small tribal village 150 miles back of the Jap lines . . . Having the assignment to construct an airport in less than 12 hours, Coogan called over a Thuggee (native chief) and asked that he parade the villagers that he wished to recruit as workers.

Hundreds of them were girls wearing very little. One, however, was better groomed than the others . . . Draped to her ankles was a huge towel with the words: "Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C."

At an airport the other day, a dejected sailor sat waiting for hours. He appeared so depressed a sympathetic bystander asked him what the trouble was . . . He said he had just come in from the South Pacific for a four-day furlough. His home was an hour and a half away by air . . . He had just been put off one plane in favor of a higher priority . . . He hadn't been home in two years. His father had died in the meantime, and every hour now seemed an eternity . . . But what really got him down, he added, was that two planes had left for his home burg but couldn't find room for him—despite the fact that the last person to board the plane was a civilian—carrying a golf bag!

When Norway was invaded civilian Germans fled Sweden because they expected that country to be invaded next . . . A German who had been buying up dollars at half the price took a train one night from Stockholm. His suitcase contained about one million dollars in small and large bills . . . He knew he could not get by Swedish customs with it, and that even if he did, the Gestapo would catch up with him in Germany . . . Not long after midnight the train stopped at a small station. The German hurried out with his valise, found a dark spot near a tree, buried his treasure, took careful note of the spot and boarded the train . . . Thru his window he made a note of a sign on a door (on the side of the depot) . . . It said KVINNOR . . . A few weeks ago he got permission to return to Sweden. At the station he showed the ticket seller the memo of the name he had copied down. The ticket seller's eyebrows jumped high and then he grinned . . . KVINNOR in Swedish means WOMEN . . . The frantic dope is now traveling all over central Sweden at night, hoping to find the right depot, not knowing that even if he is that lucky, the Swedish authorities are waiting for him.

This is how Russia whipped its Black Market . . . In Russia the soldiers get additional pay for each battle they are in, and not having anywhere to spend it, they send it home. The kinkfolk are making more money than usual (in spite of what you hear), and all this is why Russia now has too much surplus coin, as well as a Black Market which gets 40 rubles for nylons and 50 for a bottle of Scotch . . . The Soviet gov't, being realistic about it, decided to go into the Black Market racket, so now they have gov't-owned stores in all communities . . . They are called: Government-Owned Black Market Stores (or whatever the Russian is for that), and any citizen can shop in them . . . In this way, the gov't gets back all that surplus money . . . And keeps the citizens honest at the same time . . . Over here surplus money is being enjoyed only by the "mobs," who keep it all since they rarely pay taxes.

Marine 1st Lieut. Mitchell Paige (just returned after 26 months in the S. Pacific), one of two living enlisted Marines in this war to hold the Congressional Medal of Honor, has the unique distinction of being the only infantryman in this war to be grounded! . . . Wounded by the comparative "inactivity" of a forward training camp in New Guinea (following the Guadalcanal campaign), Paige "stole" a ride on a B-25 scheduled to bomb Rabaul . . . The hero was then "grounded" for the duration.

Useless Fear

"Your mother," said the sergeant to the very awkward recruit, "is rather upset because you left home to become a soldier?" "Yes, sir, she is," replied the awkward one.

"Well, just write and tell her not to fret any more," continued the sergeant. "Unless the war lasts 50 years you'll never be a soldier!"

Different Yarn

The counter was strewn with stockings, but the customer still hesitated. Drawing a deep breath, the assistant opened a new box.

"Now, these stockings, madam," she said, "are the finest you can buy. Fast color, latest shade, won't shrink, won't ladder, and the yarn is excellent."

"Yes," said the customer, with emphasis, "the yarn is excellent."

For a Match

"I think I'll get a pair of red shoes—those flatties with wedge heels," said the tall blonde.

"Why low heels?" asked her friend, in surprise.

"I want them to go with a short lieutenant."

Germes or no germes, kissing must be fully as dangerous as they make it out to be; it has put an end to a lot of bachelors.

Supreme Proof

"See that man across the road?" asked Smith as they lingered chatting at the corner. Jones nodded wearily in reply. "He's the best friend I ever had," went on Smith fervently. "When the clouds were dark and threatening, he showed a wonderful faith in me."

"How?" Jones was interested, for once.

"He lent me an umbrella."

FOR the newcomers who like to get out and play from morning until supper time—a three-piece costume of bonnet, jumper or jumper-dress and matching panties is the right garb for any little girl!

Pattern No. 8663 is in sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3, dress and panties, requires 2½ yards of 35 or 39-inch material; bonnet, ¾ yard.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A recent report of the War Department showed that Army requirements of crude or synthetic rubber for combat material included 810 pounds for a medium tank; 105 pounds for a fighter plane; 404 pounds for a 77 mm. gun carriage, down to 1½ pounds for a gas mask, and 19 pounds for a mile of field wire.

Government officials estimate that an average of one million gallons of alcohol a day will be used this year in the production of synthetic rubber. This is a big contributing factor in the shortage of certain types of beverages.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling.

Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

TAKE ADVANTAGE

price ceiling regulations

SELL YOUR CAR TO

Fiedler-Mohr Motor Co.

Eight important reasons why you should sell your car to us

- 1 You don't have to spend money putting your car "in shape" to sell it. We buy it "as is."
- 2 We'll pay you the highest prevailing price—NOT A DIME is subtracted. You get ALL of it.
- 3 You get CASH for your car. IMMEDIATELY. No partial payments. No notes.
- 4 You can sell your car and FORGET IT. No COME-BACK on you for repairs.
- 5 No advertising expense. No appointments or price haggling. No one asking you to take another car in trade. Saves you time and eliminates trouble.
- 6 No risk of breaking a friendship. If you sell to a personal friend and the car "goes wrong," he may blame you.
- 7 No O.P.A. violations involved because you "didn't know" price ceiling regulations.
- 8 You'll get a square deal all 'round because we want your friendship NOW, and in the future when you may want to buy a car again.

IF YOU DON'T NEED YOUR CAR—SELL IT!
